Austria visa application form kuwait

The U.N. visa is for immigrants who have been victims of a serious crime and are assisting U.S. police with an investigation or prosecution. Applicants will not only have to prepare U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) Form I-918, petition for nonimmigrant status, but will have this petition certified by a qualifying agency and will provide plenty of evidence to prove allegations of substantial harm. For this reason, and because filing such a petition runs the risk of deportation even if you have a strong case, we advise you to seek the advice of an experienced immigration lawyer or lawyer before submitting your application. If you're not sure if you qualify or not, see U Visas for Crime Victims Assisting Law Enforcement: Who Is Eligible to learn more about this unique visa. If you already have a qualified government official who is cooperating with your I-918 petition and you are ready to apply for a U visa, here are the instructions to fill out the form. Form I-918, your supplements and instructions are available on page I-918 of the USCIS (www.uscis.gov). This article refers to the version of the form that expires on 04/30/2021. Part 1, Information About You: You will need to provide your name (including maiden name and nicknames), address and phone number, as well as your alien number (A#), Social Security number (if you have one), and USCIS online account number (if you have one, based on a previous app). Also provide your date of birth, passport information, marital status, I-94# and other arrival/departure information and current immigration status (such as B-2 visitor or out of status). Part 2, Additional Information about you: Your answers to these questions will determine whether or not you are eligible for a U visa or whether USCIS will require at least more information from you. If you answer no to any of the 1-5 questions, your registration will be denied. Definitely see a lawyer if the real answer is no, lying in an app can put you in serious trouble. Question one. Answer yes if you are the victim of any crime listed in § 101(a)(15)(U) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (I.N.A.) or 8 U.S. Code § 1101 (a)(15)(U). Question two. Answer yes to make sure that you have been substantially injured as a result of criminal activity. Question three. Answer yes if you have information about the crime of what you were a victim of. Question four. Answer yes if a qualified employee provides a Help Certification on Form I-918, Supplement B. For more information on this, see What is required for a u visa certification of help. Question 5. Answer yes if the qualified crime occurred in the U.S. or violated U.S. law. Question six. If you're under 16, answer yes. Your parent, guardian or close friend will need to cooperate with the agency and provide information on your behalf. Question 7. If has been in removal (deportation) or exclusion proceedings from the U.S., or another court relevant to your immigration case, answer yes and provide dates in the appropriate space below. Questions 8-10. List your u.s. entry dates and locations for the past five years and the status you've maintained at the time of each entry. Write the type of visa with what you entered or EWI (entered without inspection) if you do not have legal status. If you have entered more than three times during this period, add the remaining information in Part 8 of the form. Questions 11-12. If you are applying for a U visa from abroad, complete this section. Otherwise, type N/A to not applicable. Part 3, Processing Information: The following questions are intended to determine whether you are admissible to the United States. If you answer yes to any of these, your request may be denied or you may have to file Form I-192, Request for Prior Permission to Enter as a Nonimmigrant, along with your petition. Consult an immigration lawyer if you need to answer yes to any of these questions. Questions 1-15. These ask about their criminal history, if any, as well as their moral character. Arrests, convictions, sentences, imprisonment, probation, alternative sentences, rehabilitation, prostitution, gambling, helping others evade immigration laws, drug trafficking and terrorist acts or affiliations, persecution of others, totalitarian or Nazi Party members, polygamy and more are covered. You will need to respond truthfully and list the load, date, location, and result for each event. If you need to answer yes to any of these, you'll need to explain your involvement in Part 8 of the form. Talk to a lawyer: Without a very good reason (you were forced to participate in these activities, for example) your visa application you will probably be denied. Questions 16-19. If you are currently on removal (deportation) or similar immigration proceedings, it is still possible to apply for a U visa, but the judge may not be able to postpone your hearing dates long enough to obtain the necessary approvals from uscis. If you've already been ordered removed (or deported), it gets even more complicated. You may be able to help him get a postponement of the removal so as to postpone the exercise of his removal order until his case can be heard, but under the Trump administration, such stays have become much more difficult to obtain. In both cases, definitely hire a lawyer. Question 20. If a consulate or other immigration agency has already refused to grant you a visa or entry into the U.S., you should answer yes here, and can expect the USCIS to closely examine the reasons for looking for signs of fraud or inadmissibility. Question 21. If you've asked for a voluntary departure in the past but haven't left the U.S. as you should, answer yes. Question 23. If you used fake documentation to enter the U.S. or lied to get an immigration benefit, you must answer yes Consult a lawyer: Your u visa application will probably be denied and you will be put in on process if you are no longer in them. Question 24. If you left the U.S. to avoid being drafted into the army, answer yes. Question 25. If you are or were on a J visa that came with a two-year foreign residency requirement (requiring you to leave the U.S. at the end of your J status and spend two years outside the U.S. before qualifying for another visa or green card), answer yes. You may have to submit an application for exemption, and receive an approval from it, before your u visa application can be approved. Question 26. This concerns refusing to honor a child custody order, and keeping a child out of the United States. You will definitely need to consult a lawyer if your answer to this is yes. Question 27. This asks if you plan to practice polygamy (enter multiple marriages). Answering yes would make it inadmissible to the United States. Question 28. This concerns entry as clandestine; another reason for inadmissibility. Question 29. Communicable diseases and mental disorders that threaten public safety and drug abuse make the applicant inadmissible. See a lawyer. Part 4, Information about your spouse and/or children: You will need to fill in personal information for your husband or wife and children (if applicable). Filing on behalf of family members: If you are requesting u derivative status for a qualified family member, check Yes to Question 26. Qualified family members include a spouse, unmarried children under the age of 21, parents (if you are the principal petitioner and under 21), and single siblings (if you are the principal petitioner and under 18). Part 5, Petitioner's Statement, Contact Information, Statement and Signature: You must sign and date your request and provide assurances that you have understood its content, as well as ways to reach it. Part 6, Interpreter Contact Information, Certification and Signature. If you had someone translate the app content for you as you filled in, that's fine, but that person needs to fill out this section. Part 7, Contact Information, Statement and Signature of the Person Preparing this Petition, if Not the Petitioner. If a lawyer, legal assistant or other person has filled out this form for you, that person needs to complete this section. Part 8, Additional information. Use this section if you have to add to what you said earlier on the form. After you complete the application, make a copy for your files. Then send the form and document package to the USCIS Vermont or the Nebraska Service Center, depending on where you live. (Follow uscis' online instructions.) There is no filing fee. Kathleen, I'm eagerly trying to move to Spain, but I'm not able to get legible fingerprints necessary for my residency visa application that I'm ready to leave. three months, but my fingerprints were rejected twice as unreadable. In the last set, I spent over an hour with an officer trying to get Prints. Do you have suggestions for such incidents? I attended your conference in Orlando and read your emails, but I didn't see this subject covered. Thank you. -Miriam D., United States Unfortunately, we don't have an easy answer for you. What you're describing is not uncommon. Often, the first or even the first sets are rejected. It took us up to four attempts to get acceptable and readable impressions. You could try a different ink, a different field office from the FBI, or a different person in the field office where you've been trying. Sometimes it is possible to scan your fingers digitally. This might work better. Good luck. Continue reading: A self-sufficient life in Belize's Cayo district reviews
